Life Is A Chancy Thing

There's a cowboy saying, "There ain't a horse that can't be rode. There ain't a cowboy that can't be throwed." It's a chancy thing, both for the horse and the cowboy. Because this being not quite a perfect world, no matter how good you are at something, you're going to fail at something. And how much of a failure you are in so many things, you're going to be very... or you can be very good at something.

Now, what I'm pointing out here is the nature of Soul. That's us: you and I, each individual. Not the Soul, but you are Soul. There's this creative element, a gift from God, which if we would get out of our own way, we could tap this creative element, whether it's to heal a relationship...and maybe it isn't possible, who knows...or work a situation out at work, or find employment.

There's so many today who say they can't find work, and it may be so. But those who really want to work make an effort, and an intelligent effort. Perhaps they have to change their skill levels. Whatever it takes, trust this creative element that's within you, because you are Soul. You are a spark of God.
